

July 31, 1944.

Dear Hoot and Jane:

Mother tells me that we can expect your pleasing and lovable personalities at our domicile sometime Friday or thereafter. I am writing a hasty note to suggest that Hoot bring along his golf clubs, if possible. And if the baggage compartment of the car is not ample to carry the clubs, be sure to stick the shoes in.

We will have the balls, and if the clubs or shoes are not available then we will dig up a pair of tennis shoes, a pair of shorts, and a T shirt. I am sure that Hoot will enjoy the exercise, and we will, so far as possible, call off all of our appointments so that we can engage the young man in the friendly game of pasture pool.

We will leave it to the women folks to make arrangements for the food, either at home or elsewhere.

So please be informed that we are delighted that you are coming, and although we are supposed to have a full schedule at the University, we will arrange it so that we will have a full schedule only in the line of entertainment of the Mons.

Anticipating your coming with great pleasure, I am

Affectionately yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
