Mr. A. J. McKinney,
Cabool, Missouri.

Dear Mr. McKinney:

Aha! Your note might indicate that you are a wolf in sheep's clothing. You state that you are not letting Mr. Vaughn know that you are a real estate man.

Now, Mr. McKinney, you wouldn't charge an un-suspecting man $50.00 for an address, would you? You will remember that you once warned me to watch out for Attebery. "He would skin me." Now you warn me to watch out for you.

I'm selling my farm for $1,000.00 net cash the first chance I get if I have to come to Cabool with a couple of six-shooters to do it.

Just because the Cabool natives took my unsuspecting father to a cleaning is not a sign that they can take his son.

If you get a commission from Mr. Vaughn you will have to get it from him and not from me.

I am keeping your little note as evidence of your methods.

Very truly yours,
