Dear Doc,

I am afraid I am a little late with an acknowledgement for the Rebounds, but things have been in a state confusion out here with me lately. I received the first one two weeks ago and went for it like a camel for water after eight days on the Sahara. Then with the one today I just had to find time to drop you a line and let you know you have another admirer for Rebounds. Also you might be interested to know that it doesn't stop here with me. I am in continual contact with Ensign Bill Stovits, who is in the Pacific, and beings he has never mentioned receiving them I send mine to him.

You probably have noticed my change in address and I would appreciate it if they could be sent here for me. I was sent up here last week for treatment of an old ear ailment that has caused me continual grief. In fact it is the same trouble that kept me out half of freshman football in 1942 and the cause of my wash out in the Naval Aviation
