Mr. James Curran
President, Jefferson City Country Club
Jefferson City, Missouri

Dear Mr. Curran:

Glenn Oatman has asked me to write a letter to you stating his qualifications for the managing professionals job at your Club.

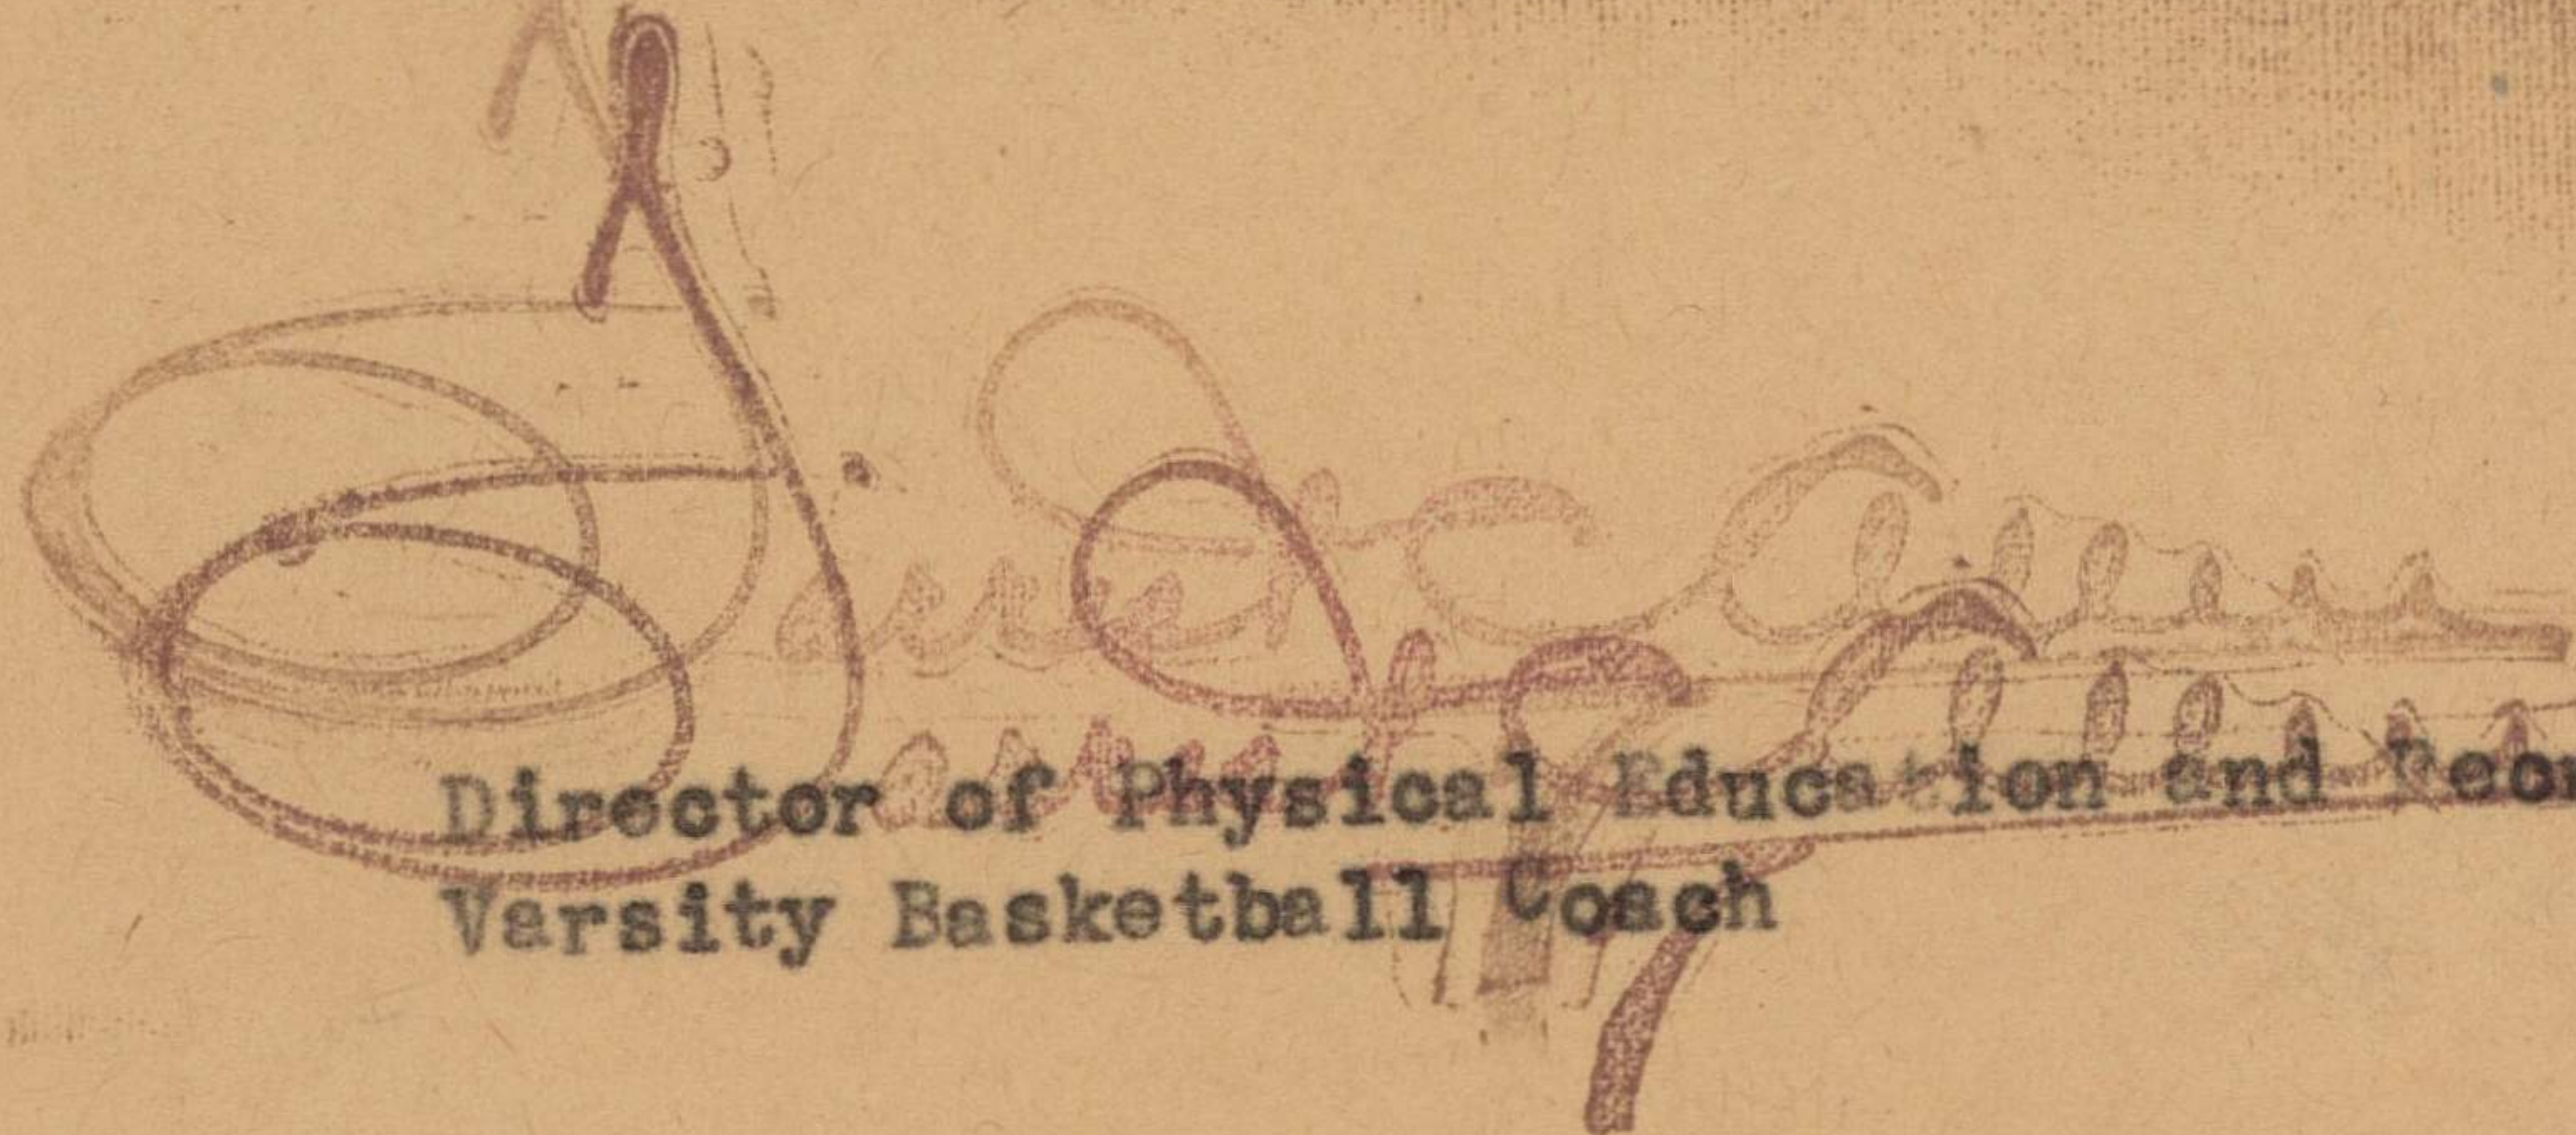

I have known Glenn Oatman since he was a youngster in high school. Mr. Irving Hill, President of the Lawrence National Bank, and a great golf devotee, was one of Glenn's staunchest supporters when Glenn attended the Lawrence Memorial High School.

It was Mr. Hill who was instrumental in contacting me so that we might give Glenn a position on our embryonic University golf course so that he could work his way through school. We did this and while here he built an old, dilapidated University course into a sporty course for University students. The type of work he did, of course, did not make him professional. He competed for the University three years on the University Golf Team, always acquitting himself with high honors. After his graduation he taught in our Department of Physical Education and also coached the Golf Team.

Glenn Oatman is a fine, clean, and an intelligent young man. His work has been founded on experience and study. He is a fine influence with young men. In addition to his thorough and integrated knowledge of the game he endeavors to teach, he would be a fine influence in your community.

I am very happy to write this testimonial regarding Mr. Oatman's character, efficiency, and knowledge of the sport. I recommend him without reservation or evasion.

Sincerely yours,

Arthur J. Allen
Director of Physical Education and Recreation
Varsity Basketball Coach
