

July 21, 1943.

Col. Robert Rossow, Cav-Res.,
Director, Woodcraft Camp,
Culver Military Academy,
Culver, Indiana.

Dear Colonel Rossow:

I got in touch with Superintendent Ayers, of Haskell Institute, this morning, since he was out of town yesterday, and they are at the bottom of the barrel. There is one boy who might be available, but neither Mr. Ayers nor I care to recommend him to you. His name is Raymond Mike, but his scholarship and personality are such that we cannot recommend him.

There is another boy at Haskell but he expects to be called by the draft any day, and I do not believe it would be worth while to consider him. The other boys we have sent you have been first class fellows, and we are afraid there might be some question about Mike.

I am sorry that the manpower is used up at Haskell. We did the best we could for you.

Very cordially yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.

FCA:AH