Dear Dr. Allen:

I have had a little difficulty in finding someone I could depend upon to give me confidential information regarding the individual you had in mind as a prospect for your department.

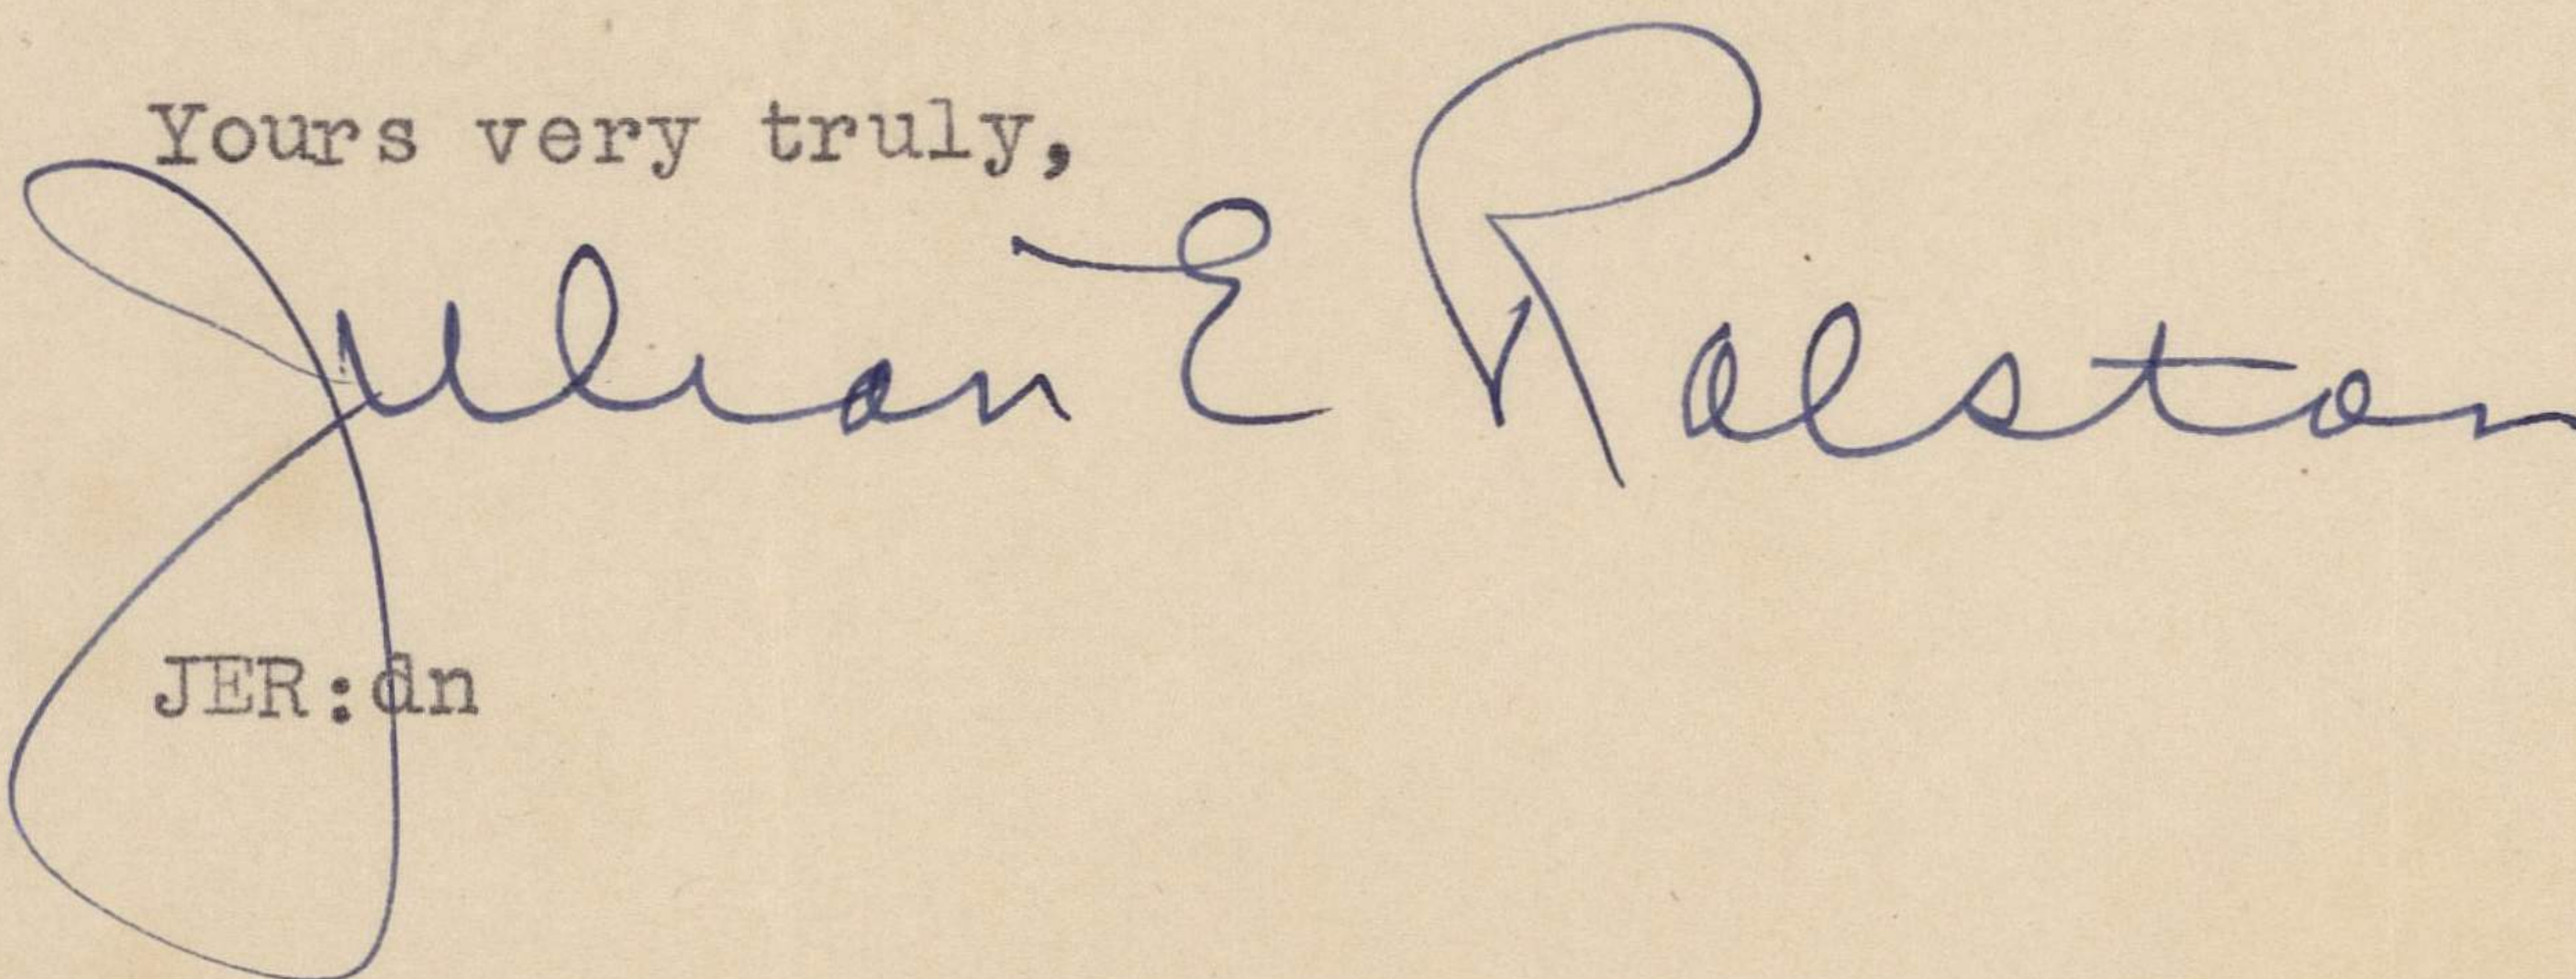

Finally, I was able to obtain information through a source that I consider reliable and I approached several individuals who were so situated as to know quite a bit about this man.

I am advised that they all were of the firm opinion that he is not at all desirable for this type of work. He is described as being very much of a "heel" and arrogant to the point of being obnoxious.

I give you this information not as my own idea since I do not know this individual at all but as relayed to me through another man from three parties who know the person in question quite well. I trust that this will be of some assistance to you.

I am

Yours very truly,
