Eight falls, four by the cadets and four by Armour Tech of Chicago, featured the meet between the two teams here on March 6. A draw in the 115 pound class and a decision in the 175 pound class gave the Chicago team the margin to win by a score of 24½-21½.

Bill Sandow Jr., of St. Louis, was elected captain during the season and will be succeeded next year by George Hibbert, a second classman from Toledo, O. BASKETBALL

Led by Captain Bill Phillips, all-tournament forward from DeKalb, Ill., who scored 152 points during the season, and who, according to Coach Oliver, is one of the best prep or high school basketball players that he has ever seen, the basketball team showed a good brand of ball throughout the season.

During the regular season the Maroons won nine of their thirteen games, and then defeated Wayland Academy of Beaver Dam, Wisc., and Harvard School of Chicago in the tournament, before giving away to St. Bede's Academy of Peru, Ill., in the quarter finals. St. Bede's went on to win the tourney.

The entire squad deserve great praise for the way in which they worked together as a coordinated team and for the way in which all showed real Culver fight throughout the season. Broten and Borden showed up particularly well at guard, as did McFadden at center. McFadden was perhaps the most improved player on the squad all year, and his all-around ability on the floor and under the basket drew the praise of all who saw him in action. He was second high scorer of the season with 125 points. Beckmeyer, Slo-cum, Herron, Price, Henderson, Koebel, Cohn, and Morton all saw action in the tournament.

The largest score made by the team during the season was the 41-14 rout of the Central YMCA cagers from Chicago. The worst defeat was registered by the Notre Dame B team which set Culver back to the count of 41-20.
