

We wanted to advertise this game, play it in the auditorium with Bask-O-Lite goals, and get a band to play for us, put it on just like we would put on the varsity-frosh football game. There is quite a bit of comment about the eventual power of this freshman outfit, and I want to start the basketball season off with a bang.

You have often said that you would do something for me, and I would like for you to be basketball Santa Claus and work that game for me, if you will. I know we would pay your expenses, even if I would have to personally pay it myself. I have been endeavoring to keep in the background from a basketball standpoint, but there are certain things that I can do myself that are my own business. So I dislike to ask for expenditures for basketball. I am going to put it over and put it over in a big way, but with the depleted condition of the athletic treasury, and by the way, it doesn't look like we are getting along any better financially, and we are spending a lot more money, so you see the reason for my reticence in asking for expenditures.

Would you do this for me, Quig?

Very sincerely yours,
