

#2 OUR FOOTBALL NEIGHBORS

But let's bury the A.A.U. for this season and discuss the great national business and professional men's obsession - the collegiate game of football.

FROM EARLY SEPTEMBER UNTIL AFTER THANKSGIVING THE AIR IS FILLED WITH PUNTS, PUBLICITY AND PLAUDITS. California - Only Chicago

Lovers of football are becoming increasingly concerned over the attitude of the growing minority among the spectators, who under artificial stimulus make the game unpleasant for their neighbors and even invade the field and interfere with the progress of the game.

It is somewhat strange that the phenomena of offensive drinking is really peculiar to football games - not being so evident at Big League baseball games, prize fights and other athletic exhibitions. Strange, because a larger proportion of those at the football games than at other contests have had the benefit of college training. Such training is supposed to have some beneficial effects upon a person's manners, self control and sportsmanship. Some of those who defend stadium drinking say that much of it is due to frigid weather conditions but those who regularly attend great skiing meets, toboggan races and other winter sports assure me that the spectators there, as a whole, are a sober lot.
