

A request was made to the Missouri management Monday morning at 8 o'clock for a reservation of 200 seats. Over 2000 seats were disposed of by the Missouri management from that time until Tuesday, when they announced that there would be no tickets for sale. The Athletic office was told to have the Kansas people send their orders down to Columbia. Every Kansas adherent who did that failed to get tickets.

Mr. Spurling, of Missouri, stoutly maintained that their patrons who had patronized the Missouri Athletic Association all year should have first choice. He failed to see, however, that Kansas friends should have at least been considered in a pro-rata distribution of the tickets.

It has always been the Kansas practice to allocate to the visitors a reasonable number of tickets to be sold to them. But this is the first time in the history of Big Six athletic relations that the visitors were entirely shut out, especially when the appeal was made for tickets when there were thousands of tickets for sale.
