

Training

Mrs. Rothfelder received her training at Ward-Belmont School, Nashville, Tennessee, and at the University of Nebraska. She has appeared in some of the most impressive gatherings in the middle west and she can adapt herself to college, business or professional groups.

Who doesn't enjoy a good play

In the Broadway hit comedy, "I'd Rather Be Right," Mrs. Rothfelder, whose unusual and highly diverting impersonation of President Roosevelt in one of his fireside chats never fails to create an unforgettable high spot at any gathering. Mrs. Rothfelder's performance is fun. It bounces. It has dash. It has many fruity comical situations.
