THE READER'S CAMERA CLICKS

Sirs: Your July 25th issue had a letter on the "Speak Up" page asking why some one didn't invent a new game. I am inclosing pictures of a new game called "Goal-Hi," first played a few days after the above mentioned letter was published. Its creator is Dr. Fog Allen, basketball coach at Kansas University. "Goal-Hi" is similar to basketball, except there is only one goal, and the court is circular. To make it faster, fouls are penalized by a stay in a penalty box as in hockey and the ball is in play after every basket. The court is 50 feet in diameter with a circle 6 feet across at the base of the goal post over which players cannot step. It can be played on most lawns and at night by car headlights, and permits each player an equal opportunity to be a high score man. Thos. Bowlus, Lawrence, Kansas.
