

idea of arriving particularly at the end of a war, as was useful beyond example in our conduct and when you are deserted by your allies and on the eve of a meeting of them. I mean Spain.

I am afraid the length of this letter will exhaust your patience. I will therefore conclude by wishing you all health and happiness and a speedy return home.

Ever believe me,

Dear Augustus,

Yours most affectionate

Friend and Brother
P. B. Wash.

Duke of Clarence
King William the 4th