Dear Sir

Before the war Mrs Agresti (daughter of William Rossetti), whose husband was an editor of 'Tribuna', visited us here, and I also had the pleasure of some time with her in Rome. I am anxious to know how she has fared and have written thrice to Italy, but got no reply. I should be very greatly obliged if it were possible for some member of your staff to let me know if she is still alive, and, if so, how she may be communicated with.

Yours faithfully
