

hearing or reception, and feels the want of opportunity. It is trying in the quind state a great social experiment - misunderstood and belittled by the outside world.
It is trying to build up a new rural civilization notwithstanding the immense difficulties of financial poverty, believing that spiritual energy can and will overcome them.

Italy is called machiavellian when, as a matter of fact, she is the most ut-spoken and sincere of the nations and where France and England clothe national motives under the cloak of international high mindedness, she talks of "sacred egoism" and national needs. But enough of this.

I have greatly enjoyed my stay in England and the day with
