Graham's Conduct
(This part I carefully scored out - so much as the fish stick con-tained - in sending your letter to C.) seems to me most extraor-dinary. Considering how invariably & excellently well he has behaved to myself, & the pub-lic & artistic esteem which I have heard him express for you. He is I believe now perma-nently in town again with his family. They came here about a week ago - He had been here several times when on flying visits to London from Scotland, and on one occasion he mentioned 2 heads you were doing for him, and I then said "Did you write further about the picture?" He answered

"No, I called when in Manchester, but Shill's was out." This I imagined must have been in allusion to the time he called on you before our last conversation, but as he was just leaving in a hurry I made no further inquiry. He certainly had said at the end of that conversation that he should write at once for you on getting home that day & renew the commission - The matter
