My dear Charlie:

I have just run across the correspondence between Lathrop and Etoile, a copy of which went to you. I am very happy that under the arrangement she was not given the sum outright, but will continue to have monthly payments.

I have been piling letters in on you and Julia so fast that you will have to spend a week some day answering them.

Thank the Lord it is still raining and there is some hope that the parched subsoil will again be moistened.

With love to all,

Your brother,
