

found Indian Relics, and recently Mrs. Kuhn and I both are attending meetings of an Archaeology Society who here in Plymouth make a special study of Indian excavations of pre historic days as well as that of the modern Indian, many interesting specimens are found along the Cape Cod Canal and I too have found some things, but of little value here in Plymouth.

One of the Plymouth folks who is President of the local society a few years ago found the pieces of a large vessel and had it put together and has it in his home, its about 2 ft high and the same distance in diameter. I understood that Harvard College put it together for him and after they made their study, took pictures and so forth, gave it
