Dear Charles:

Do you think that Gertrude should come to Chicago to see her brother? I don't want her to make the trip alone, so it would mean that we both would have to go. From what you have said of his condition, I fear he wouldn't recognize us even if we could come, and it seems like there is so little we could do. At the same time we do not want to neglect him in any way. We appreciate the wonderful help that you have been to him and to us.

Our understanding of your last letter was that his own funds that could be used paying expenses, are practically exhausted with the exception of the death benefits that would be paid should he pass away. We want to keep plenty of money in your hands to take care of everything without your having to advance any of your own.

Please advise us if you would like to have us send a check for $100.00 or more.

Thanking you a lot, I am

As ever,

Your Brother
