June 7, 1924

As you know we have just let the contract for a new building for the Journal-World. This building is made necessary to care for present needs as well as for future growth.

Actual work will be commenced before the first of June and then we must meet the bills of the contractors as the work is done. It will be of great advantage to us to collect in all accounts outstanding at the present time. Some are large and others are small, but altogether they will go a long way towards paying the cost of the building.

A letter similar to this is being sent to everyone against whom we have an account, whether the bill is large or small, and we will certainly appreciate it, if you will make payment as soon as you can.

Thanking you for your cooperation, we remain

Sincerely yours,

THE WORLD COMPANY
