Thursday evening 28th July

Dear Mr. Simons:

The letter from "Interested Reader" about the Sunday School Lesson discussions was very welcome. The handwriting puzzled the folks in the front office, who thought the postcard had been mailed locally.

When Agnes and I went to Kansas City a few weeks ago to attend E.R. Schauffler's funeral, we stopped at the Coffee Shop operated by Nellie Reese Evans and her mother in the block south of the Pickwick hotel. When we told them who we were they were very glad to see somebody from Lawrence and immediately made inquiries about your whereabouts and your health. They appeared glad to hear that you were up north and apparently doing all right.

It was a pretty hot day and the Coffee Shop had no cooling system. But about 100 persons were taking lunch when we were there, many coming and going. The food was delicious and the charges reasonable. From appearances the Evanses were making out well with their venture.

The front office said Mrs. Dolph had called up today and said something about the big storm you had Wednesday night. I hope things were not shaken up too badly. If it was a cold front, it hasn't moved down this way yet. It's not seriously hot here, just a little too hot.

I believe Marie said Dolph and Ernie would be home Sunday. We'll be glad to see them, altho nothing is haywire, as far as I know.

Sincerely

J.W. Murray
