Dear Blanche:

I called at Eileen's house yesterday and again found her not at home. I just talked to her over the phone and find that she went to a picture show which seems to me was rather a "brave undertaking." I also called on Doctor Johnson and talked things over with him. As you know, he lost a portion of his left thumb and badly cut the tendons on his first finger, but apparently they are coming along as well as could be hoped for.

Eileen tells me that she talked to you yesterday so there is nothing for me to tell you. I am very glad to know that Pat had no ill effects from stepping out with you, and I certainly hope and pray that he is going to whip that and do it without much longer delay.

Janet and Mac came down for the game, spent Saturday night with us, and left after dinner yesterday.

I called Dorothea and found that everything is okay up there. We have quite a supply on hand of pears picked from her trees and from ours, and I wanted to know what, if anything, she wished to do with hers. I still don't know.

Life moves along as usual. You, undoubtedly, read about John's injury. It was a brutal effort on the part of the Topeka player to put him out of the game, but instead of our boys crumbling, the boys all played over their heads and had a fine victory over Topeka.

I think John went back to school this morning but whether he will be able to put in full hours there or not, I am not sure. The dentist says that his teeth have not been damaged, although some of them were loosened, and Doctor Dunlap checked his eyes
