Mrs. L. A. McNalley
Minneapolis, Kansas

Dear Janet:

Your letter written Sunday night was received this morning, and I immediately took my car and drove out to the trailer lot. I found the Austin trailer without any difficulty, and Mrs. Stout recognized me as soon as the door was opened.

I had a pleasant visit with Mrs. Stout and Mrs. Austin. The third young woman was there, but I didn't learn who she was. I told Mrs. Stout that I would be very happy to have them come out to the house for dinner, but it seemed impractical for them to do so as it interfered with their calling hours at the hospital.

From what they say, I think Mr. Austin is getting along satisfactorily. They seemed to be pleased to have me call. The trailer park is situated on high ground which, ordinarily, would be well drained, and even under present conditions the ground is not in bad shape.

I don't know of anything that I could do for him at this time. I suggested reading material, but they said that that would not be best for his eyes at this time, and of course, nothing in the way of food could be offered. I think I shall send a potted plant out in my name and yours.

Bob Riggs dropped in for a few minutes yesterday. As you know, he is Marilyn's intended and gives the impression of being a wide awake young chap.

We are very happy to have Dolph home, and I think if you will save your papers containing his letters, that Frano will be glad to read them when she gets home.

I watch the highschool results, and it seems to me that Mike's team has had a good share of victories.

Everything seems to be running smoothly out home. I found
