Farmer
male

Very Poor Citizen.

E. Mr. Sam S.-----A farmer who has a loyal wife who would have been a real helpmeet had he conducted himself properly. As it is she has stood by him even entering into his work of making and selling booze. Also has a son, who has been given the advantages of a high school education, but has followed in the footsteps of his father and has been guilty of engaging in the unlawful making and selling of booze. Mr. S. occupied a farm in a rich locality where other men grew rich. Has nothing now; has served a term in the penitentiary for violation of the prohibitory law and recently has been sentenced to another year for a like charge. Has ruined himself and his family and has aided in the downfall of many others.
