Dear Blanche:

I was very glad to get your letter of last Friday. I have just received a letter also from Marilyn with two pieces of good news, one that they are expectant for the coming August, and the other that she believed Pat was getting better and that his skin was healing.

There is nothing much new here. I went to a general meeting of the church last night for the first time in a long while, and I did not find it greatly exciting. Maybe I am cold and frigid and people are afraid to be too friendly and kindly, or else we have a fairly cold bunch at the church. I sometimes think that perhaps there are those in the church who rather resent that I do more for the church, in a physical way at least, than any other member. I don't want to become a grouch, and I am getting rather used to being lonely because my young people at home stay in their apartment in the lounge down stairs and I spend my evenings alone in the living room.

I have a T-V installation, but I am not too greatly entertained by it. I turned it on last night for a while but did not like the exhibition of Golden Gloves that was being given, so turned it off again. Please do not sympathize with me too much because I am getting along very well under the circumstances.

Otis is a dandy boy. I like him, and he informed me yesterday that he had secured his Masters Degree which made him exceedingly happy. He has been a good student. They expect to be with me until June.

Dear little John Louis would now be 35 years old were he living. I think of him often.

You still are, as you always have been, a most satisfactory daughter.

Lots of love,
