Dear Children:

The beautiful flowers you ordered from Allison-Thomas came to our house last evening and I took them out to the cemetery this morning. I also watered the flowers that were already there as well as adding water to your beautiful bouquet. I am happy to have the other children interested in this matter, for so far it seems very largely to have been left to me. You will be interested in knowing that geraniums are still in bloom on our graves and some other flowers are also blooming.

I am always happy to have you here and hope you will come as frequently as possible.

Dolph leaves this evening for Salt Lake. I had always presumed that he was happy and satisfied with his married life, but these Mormons do have their appeal.

I noticed a solitary rose in bloom on the trellis at home this morning. As this is November 1 that is rather remarkable. It was warm during the night, but the wind changed to the north about 8 o'clock and I presume the change in temperature is here or is about to arrive.

Lovingly,
