Dear Eileen and Carl:

The picture of your handsome and manly looking little son is one of the most attractive features of the table upon which my Christmas presents are placed.

Not having had any of the other kind, you and Carl probably do not fully realize what an especially good baby you have. I can see him now as he walked around our house from room to room, not disturbing anything but seemingly pleased with having so much room in which to wander.

I hope you have had a very happy holiday season.

Lovingly,
