Dear Marilyn:

I received your good letter some days ago and appreciate very much having you write me from time to time and tell me how things are moving along.

I see my little great-grandson here quite frequently and I know I should be very interested in the ones to arrive both at your home and at Pat's. I hear frequently from Blanche, and the last letter or two have been quite encouraging. It seems that he is responding quite favorably to a new drug called Cortizone. Pat has been very sick and both he and Blanche deserve all of the encouragement we can give them.

We are nearing commencement time, and some of these days you will be coming up to meet with your class. Our spring has been a little unusual, probably a little colder than usual, but the trees are now almost in full foliage and the yards are filled with beautiful flowers. You are doubtless a month or more earlier in your vegetation than we are here.

Write to me again when you have time and tell me all the news.

Much love,
