

an earthly reminder.

Sorry you were not feeling well on May 13th, but perhaps it's just as well, as those days are sort of sad. I was alone all day myself as Pat went fishing with Do Bernardi & I was glad he could go.
Eileen had been here the week previous & Marilyn was here last week.

I think it's fine you have dinners with Roger & Mairi often & am sure they are very thoughtful. It's too bad you are lonely, but there are worse things. I get lonesome too for my nice family, but one's solitude is unfortunate. If you lived under constant confusion, you'd not like that. I love you very much & am sure I'll see you soon. Blanche
