Dear Marilyn,

There is one flaw in your fine character and that is your neglect to date your letters. I have one dated November 8 and one in which you speak of the Riggs family coming for Thanksgiving.

In any event, I am glad to hear from you and remember with pleasure the very nice visit I had with you and Robert a year ago. I returned a day or two ago after spending nearly a week with my daughter, Janet, Mrs. L. A. McNalley, of Minneapolis. Mike drove me out in his car and I came back with Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who are keeping house for me this winter. She is a graduate and her husband is attending the engineering school at K. U. He has been a marine in the United States Navy. They are nice young folks, and we get along well together. I think they are expecting an arrival a few months hence.

I haven't seen as many members of the family this fall as usual, but the rooms are still there at the old homestead.

Give my love to Bob.

Lovingly,

Granddad
