Dear Marilyn,

I remember the pleasant time I had with you last Thanksgiving, and hope that everything will be happy with you this year. You have not paid me a visit yet, and you know you will be welcome at anytime that you can come.

I remember the big old bird that we had last year, which was enough for all of us, and which must have lasted until you got extremely tired of it. I remember how well Bob did his carving, and the heating device under the floor and the one in the bathroom caused me a little worry lest it might set fire to something. That is the way with most of our worries, they are over things that do not happen.

You have a pleasant home and I think it is fine that Owen and Marie are so nearby. I think that I will spend Thanksgiving with Janet at Minneapolis, and probably will spend Christmas here in Lawrence.

I shall be glad to hear from you.

Much love,

Grandad
