Dear Eileen:

Your sweet letter of the 31st greeted me this morning. I am always glad to hear from you, and you have always been such a darling granddaughter. I should like to see Wayne very much, and I want you to tell him that his grandad loves him.

We had our first fall of snow, a very light one, last night. I have been having a man dig out a clogged sewer pipe for the last couple of days, and I don't think he is quite finished yet, but service to our house has been maintained.

Everything is moving along nicely, and I shall be very happy to have you, Carl and Wayne visit us. I know it is difficult for Carl to get away, and that is as it should be because business is only good when it has good management, and good management demands quite careful attention. As the business continues to develop and you are able to secure men to handle different departments, you may find a little more freedom.

I had a number of young folks drop in on us last night, and we had prepared for them by having apples and candy ready.

Give my love to Carl and give little Wayne a hug for his grandad.

Lots of love,

Grandad
