Dear Blanche,

Janet and Mac dropped in just for a moment last night on their way to Kansas City. They did not even take time to sit down but they did tell me that Pat has been having a rather serious time and I certainly am very, very sorry. I don't suppose there is any place he could go where a change of scene or the medicable value of water would help him. He has a wonderful constitution and remarkable courage and will power. I have no doubt that he will whip his present set back as he has the other attacks which have come during the past five or six years. I had hoped that he would be well enough so you could pay us a visit.

If, for any reason, medical expense should demand more money, let me know because his life and health are worth more than money.

I presume I will spend another summer at Gull Lake, but it will depend largely upon what arrangements the girls make. Both Janet and Mac looked well and were enroute to Kansas City to see Mary Beth. Mike came to study last night and evidently was the last one up because this morning we found that he had locked the living room door but had locked it from the outside and had left the key in the key hole.

John, Dolph Jr., and Marie have recently had photographs taken by someone who had worked with Blanche Reineke, and he did wonderfully fine work for them.

I think I have told you that when Leslie and Irene leave, as they will sometime next month, a Mr. and Mrs. Scott plan to take over and I think that even should I go north, that they would occupy the house this summer.
