Dear Dad.

Just 25 years ago tomorrow Dad and I were married - and now we are getting around to take our honeymoon trip. We leave tomorrow for a week or ten days in New York City - expect to see several plays - do a night club or two, a lot of rubbernecking and just having a good time together - This will be the first real trip we ever have had together alone - that is with out me or both children. Our friends have treated us royally - The news had no formal recognition of the silver anniversary - have received several lovely gifts of silver - and this evening some friends brought me a beautiful orchid to wear - so I'll feel very festive.

He will be home a week before Christmas and are expecting you to spend the holidays with us. The Lions club is entertaining the football squad with their annual banquet tonight. Dad is toastmaster and Arthur Lomborg is to be speaker and will show some movies of N. A. games. I've been getting the last minute things
