Dear friends,

I appreciated very much your thoughtfulness in sending me a card during my brief stay at the hospital. I think that the receipt of messages from friends may fully play as great a part in one's recovery as the care given by doctors and nurses.

I have not asked recently about the whereabouts of your children, but I should not be at all surprised to know that you have had the happiness of being grandparents.

For many years my brother used to say that we children, instead of taking pride or satisfaction in our accomplishments, should thank the Lord for giving us the kind of parents we had.

Thanking you for your kindness, I remain,

Cordially yours,

W. C. Simons
