Dear Dolph;

Mrs. Turrentine and I wish to extend to you, your sisters, and all the family our sincerest sympathy in the death of your father. We were truly grieved to read of his passing.

I have visited with your father on many occasions and always greatly admired him for his keen mind, his very modern point of view on present day happenings and the great loyalty he always expressed toward the state. His kind and type of an editor are all too few in the world today to my way of thinking.

With the kindest of regards to you all, I am

Yours very truly,

Bill
