

Phillips County Review

Burglars broke into the Review office but got only a small amount of money and some checks. Payment was stopped on the checks, and the money wasn't enough to warrant the risk, according to McDill "Huck" Boyd, publisher.

Southwest Daily Times

Demi Sherrill, machinist-operator, has been attending a teletypesetter school in Chicago. Mrs. Sherrill, who is bookkeeper for the Times, joined her husband in Chicago for the last week of the school, planning to remain for several days vacation in the Chicago area. They were to return to Liberal the last of May.

Dodge City Globe

Bob Morris has succeeded Ora Burdue as circulation manager. Burdue was shifted to classified advertising manager vice Ray Covalt who resigned after five years on the Globe.

Reporters Debate City Manager Plan

To give Topeka citizens both sides of the proposed change to a city manager form of government, the Topeka Daily Capital has been running a series of articles by reporters with opposed views.

Ken David, the Capital's city hall reporter, believes the commission form of government, which Topeka now has, is best.

Phil Aherne, having watched Wichita's city manager plan in operation, believes that form is superior.

The two daily articles appear side by side, under a special heading. The series closed with rebuttal and summarizing articles by each.

Have You Seen Kansas?

Clark Buffalo Ranch Near Independence

Buffalo still roam the prairies of Kansas! At Gene Clark's Buffalo Ranch, 17 miles southwest of Independence, the largest commercial buffalo herd in the country can be seen placidly grazing on lush pasture. Clark, who raises the animals for their meat and hides, now has 840 acres devoted to his unusual occupation.

Although the ranch is surrounded by a six-foot woven-wire fence, visitors are warned to keep their distance from the unpredictable animals. A full-grown bull buffalo weighs over a ton and can easily nudge over an automobile.

Kansas has much of interest. The Clark Buffalo Ranch is near Independence. But anywhere in Kansas one is privileged to enjoy a moderate glass of beer . . . because "beer belongs." Its sale under orderly conditions is an objective of the brewing industry. The continuous educational program of the United States Brewers Foundation helps beer retailers achieve this service to the public.

Holton Recorder

Miss Mabel Taylor has retired after nearly a half century working on the Recorder. She started at the age of 16 as a typesetter, before the days of the linotype. Later she worked in other departments of the paper, running the job presses and sometimes feeding the big cylinder press during help shortages of World War I. In recent years she has been bookkeeper and office manager for the Recorder, in addition to taking news items.

Miss Taylor says she will spend her retirement at her home in Holton, reading the Recorder carefully to see how many errors the new hands are making. Mrs. Melba Haas has succeeded to her place on the Recorder.

Dodge City Globe

R. H. "Bob" Morris is back as circulation manager of the Dodge City Globe after being gone nine years, most of the time as instructor in the University of Missouri's school of journalism. Before joining the Globe the first time he had been circulation manager of newspapers in Superior, Wisc., and Des Moines, Iowa.
