

とあげてゐ

A black and white woodblock print illustration of a bird, likely a crane, perched on a branch. The bird has long, flowing feathers and is facing left. The branch is adorned with small, five-petaled flowers. In the upper right corner, there is a rectangular box containing the Japanese characters '蜂鷗' (Hotoke) and smaller text below it.