

upon seeing him along side, though it as well, by hoisting his signal to make the appearance of wishing him to attend, but that was only appearance I can almost imagine, at the as I before said Genl M. is the second in Command I can't help venturing an opinion how, which indeed this is not only mine, but every body's, that this a very singular thing, the 2^d in Comd should actually be as little acquainted with the arrangements of the Com^d in Chief, & not only arrangements but the common place incidents, as any Subaltern in the Army; he ^{literally} actually did not know
