(3 Some. I that have always condemned the Spanish faction, methinks it is a thing so strange that I should now begin to assert it. Remember what St. Austin saith, Sic iudicate tanquam ab alio mox iudicandi, omnis Iudex tribunali. So judge you as men that are to be judged one day by another, for there is one Judge one Judgment Seat. Now my Masters if you your selves would be contented upon pleasure to be deluded 'opp to slaughter to have your wives and children turned out into the streets to beg your bread, if you would be contented to be so judged, then judge so of me.

Serieant Pfellipps. I hope to make this matter so cleare as that the acte of mine shall have no colour to Answer it. The matter is treason in the highest degree, the end to deprive the King of his Crowne. The particular treasons are those first to raise upp Rebellion, and for to effect that to procure money to raise upp Tumults in Scotland, and by divulging a treasonable booke against the King's right to the Crowne, their purpose to take away the life of his Matie and his issue, my Lord Cobham confesseth Sr. Walter Rawleigh to be guiltie of all those treasons. The question is whether hee be guiltie as joyning joyning with him, or instigating of him, the Course to prove this read my Lord Cobhams Arraignment, if that bee true hee is guiltie, if not hee is cleare, so that whether Cobham say true or Rawleigh that is the question, Rawleigh hath no Author but the shadow of nothing with as little of mine own devise, hee hath his bare denyall, but a denyall for a deed might add more a fury! In the Starr Chamber or in the Exchequer for a matter of title, if a deed bee called in question, his denyall upon his Oath is not Evidence to the Court to cleare him, hee did it in Propria causa therefore must lose in matter of Treason, and here hee proceeded with a large discourse of Cobhams Arraignment against Rawleigh.

If truth bee constant and constancy in truth, why hath hee forsworne that which hee hath said? you have not proved one thing against mee by direct proofe but all by circumstances. Raw.

Have you done the King must have the last. Attor.

Nay mr. Attorney, hee that speakes for his life must speake last, false reports and mistaking must not marre my Cause, you should speake secundum allegata Raw:
