

Two columns of text in a medieval script, likely Gothic or similar, written on parchment. The text is arranged in two columns, with a large circular hole at the top center and a smaller circular hole on the left side. The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear, including stains and discoloration.