

Dubrovnik, "Pearl of the Adriatic" in the days of the republic, 1469-1808. Founded by the Republic of Venice, it was a free city and a member of the Holy Roman Empire. It was destroyed by the Yugoslav army in 1991 during the Croatian War.

People of Dubrovnik in the days of the republic, 1469-1808. The photograph on the left shows a family of Dubrovnik in the days of the republic, 1469-1808. The photograph on the right shows a group of people in uniform, possibly a military band or a group of soldiers, standing in a line.

The map of Dubrovnik and the surrounding area, showing the city's location on the coast of the Adriatic Sea, with surrounding mountains and other cities marked.

The text on the left page of the open book, showing a large block of text.

The photograph of the building on the left page of the open book, showing a large, multi-story building with a prominent tower or spire, possibly a church or a government building.

The photograph of the group of people on the left page of the open book, showing a group of people, possibly a family or a group of friends, standing together and smiling.